> PROSPECTUS OF THE

NASHVILLE

THE NAMEYELD UNION WAS COMMERCED A few weeks since, for the purpose of opposing the Rebet Southern Confederacy, and of mivocaling the resteration of Federal authority, without any abatement, over all the States which have attempted to second. It holds as friends all who support, and as feen all who oppose the Union of the States. It has no watchwood but Farsence and Nationality.

With robels and tests.

With robels and traite this no compromise to make. It contends for the Federal Constitution and the Laws made in pursuance thereof as the Surmises Laws of any of the States to the contrary notwith tanding.
It contends for the Union of the States, because without it the preservation of our liberties and insti-tutions and the organization of society itself are wholly impossible. Therefore, whatever stands in the way of crumbing out the rebellion and restoring e Union must perish, no matter by what name it be e Union must perish, no matter by what name it be ed.

To the people of Tennessee, ever renowned for their devotion to Liberty and Union, until they were betrayed to the rebet despoisins at Richmond by a perdious Governor and corrupt Legislature, and who have felt so beavily the awful curso of treason and anarchy, we appeal for support. Let the names of rebet office-holders, veginace Committees, and Minute Men, who have filled our burders with mourning, be gibbetted before the world. Let those ambitious and avaricious man who have plotted our ruin for their own aggrandizement be fastened to this pillory of shame, no matter how high their "then in society. Let it be shown how the self-styled defenders of "Southern Rights" are now leading marauding bands of free-booters and meas troopers over our State, kidnapping negrous, stealing horses and eatile, breaking into houses, burning railroad bridges and carn, and murdering unarmed citizens in cold blood. Let the truth, so long excluded by the Southern compirators, now circulate freely through overy neighborhood, and our cause will assuredly triumph. Will not loyal men everywhere aid us in the dissemination of facts and the advocacy of Free Government? and the advocacy of Free Government?

Immense Capture of Rebel Arms. NASHVILLE, Monday, Oct. 13, We received the following dispatches y the kindness of General Negley, late resterday evening. The news was brought y a courier from Col. Barrer, at Bowling Green, whose dispatches are direct from Louisville, and dated October 10th. A great battle has been fought in Kentucky between the entire forces of BUELL and Bragg, and the result will smake every loyal heart in the land leap with the deepest joy. The fight took place on the 9th inst. at Perryville, Boyle county, Ky. about ten miles from Danville and eighteen miles from Lebanon. The combined forces of SMITS and BRAGG were in the action. The engagement was general, and after a fierce contest and immense slaughter the Rebel forces were completely routed. The loss on both sides was very heavy. The Federal troops drove the Rebels ten miles from the field of action, who left all their dead and wounded on the field. The Robel loss in both officers and men is exceedingly heavy. On our side we have to record with gricf the death of the gallant General James S. Jackson, commander of the Cavalry in Kentucky; of and the Adjutant of the 15th Kentucky, Col. Pope was wounded. This is a glorious victory, but the nation will mours over the less of some of her noblest patriots, while Kentucky weeps over the fall of her children, worthy of their loyal ancestors of the "Dark ry officer of the regular army, and of Cols, and Bloody Ground." In the death of General Jackson, the nation has indeed lost one of her most chivalrous sons. The scene of the conflict is between eighty and ninety miles from Cumberland Gap, to which point Bragg will probably make, by way of Mount Vernon, London, and Barboursville, with the certain loss of his artil-

Cairo, Oct. 7. As yet we can state only the general results of the fighting at Corinth. Skirmishing commenced on Tuesday last, and there has been move or less fighting every day since.

The rebel loss is about 800 killed, and from 1,500 to 1,800 wounded. We have taken 1,500 at Corinth, 300 on Hatchee River, and more are constantly coming in. -The rebels threw away in their flight three thousand stand of arms, mostly new and of English make.

Our loss is about 200 killed and 1,000 Many houses in Covinth are badly

The rebels fought with desperation, but were completely routed at places as were most secure and best supevery point by our indomitable soldiers. plied with water and forage for the The rebel Generals Wint ADAMS and MOORE were killed. We learn that the Chattanooga Relef of late date admits the from the 3rd and 4th Ohio and 5th Kenand helpers, beside the cavalry escurt repulse of its side, and states that they tucky cavalry, which was interluded retreated to Ripley.

Rebel prisoners taken say that their effective force in that vicinity was sixtyfive thousand. This is probably an overestimate, but it is certain they have outnumbered us two to one, as Price's army has been greatly swelled within the last few weeks by the rigid and universal task assigned him without the loss of a conscription enforced.

Thus within one week two of the finest of the rebel armies, one in Kentucky and the other in Mississippi, have been cut to pieces and routed.

Late from Murfreesboro!

A messenger who arrived at Headmarters yesterday evening from Murfreesboro, reports that a great panic prevails there, that the rebel forces are in dread of an attack, and dispersing, and that Foregra is sending off his artillery to Chattanooga. ANDERSON is furiously denounced by every one for his conduct at Lavergne. FORREST fled twice from his camp last week on hearing an alarm that General NEGLEY was advancing on him with his entire force. The guertilla's career is nearly closed.

The dark thunder-cloud of treason, which for weeks past menaged Kentucky and Tennessee with its portentous folds, has broken, and the sun of the Federal Union casts upon our upturned faces, all radient with delight, a flood of glory, through the scattered and flying banners of the storm. ucky has replied in tones of thunder;

We shall probably receive details of the Perryville fight late this evening; if so, they will appear in the Union of tomorrow morning.

Gen. Buell's Wagon Train. To the Editors of the Louisville Journal: The safe arrival in this city of the immense train of wagons belonging to the Army of the Ohio, notwithstanding the perils which beset its passage hither from Bowling-Green, is a matter of sufficient interest to the Union people of the loyal States to justify a brief statement showing the magnitude and difficulty of the undertaking, as well as the manner in which the delicate duty of moving so large an amount of Government property was discharged by those to whom it was entrusted. The entire train contained over seventeen hundred wagons, nearly every one of which was laden with ammunition, provisions, forage, or baggage for officers and men, the total value of which must reach nearly two millions of dollars. The easy and natural route from Bowling-Green to this city, be it remembered, was much of it held by the enemy, making it necessary to choose an unfrequented and difficult route, and to move with so much advoitness as to elude the spies that were watching for the intended route, as well as to be well defended in case of attack. The inexperienced can hardly conceive how difficult the undertaking even upon good roads to move a train of wagons well laden, extending when in motion a distance of some twenty miles, but when, as in this case, rivers must be forded, and raw troops, but Buell's fire will give them. high hills must be crossed by the most rugged winding and difficult passages possible, besides being watched by spies, menaced by guerrillas, and threatened by the enemy in force, all intent upon the capture of so valuable a prize, the true nature of the undertaking begins to No. 71 East Side Public Square appear.

But Col. Zahm proved to be the right man in the right place. Quick to perceive, untiring and energetic in executing his well-laid plans, he has merited the confidence reposed in him by Gen. Buell.

Without delay the train was divided into three sections, the first consisting of the ammunition train and fourth division six bundred wagons, in charge of Capt. S. Perkins, Jr., A. Q. M.; the second section, consisting of the first, third, fifth, and sixth divisions, over six hundred wagons, in charge of Capt. Ralph Plumb, A. Q. M.; and the third section, consisting of the second and seventh divisions and Dudley's cavalry train, over five hundred wagons, in charge of Capt. Thomas

The Rahn, commanding 1st brigade of cavalry, by order of Gen. Buell, took charge f the expedition. Each of these sections moved separately, and were generally parked about five miles apart each night, in such stock. Each section was accompanied by over 2,000 men, drivers, assistants, throughout the entire train. By the aid of Capt. Gaubert, in charge, and Capts. Perkins, Plumb, and Bowles, in command of the different sections, sustained by the united efforts of Quartermasters, wagonmasters, and teamsters generally Col.
